SOLITARY WAY

In intact action,
I was puzzled
With abiding expression
Of furrowed brow.

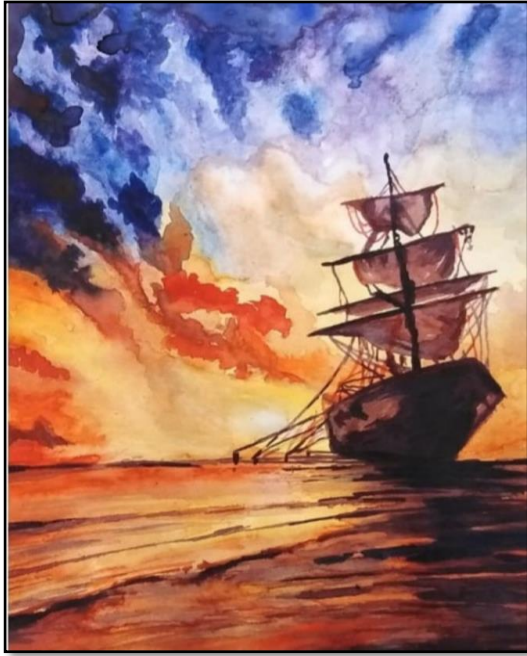

Dragging in fresh air,
Rubbing off whimpering sound,
Stepped out of Fixed extent.

In leisurely pace,
Moved ahead
Silently ambled
Along for miles.

Bright flowers found
Swaying gently, aside
Water wave were Drifting and gushing along.

The tall trees
Were standing silent,
And my gaze
Observing them all, moved on.

"Anderson Localization Random Lasers"
by
Dr. Sushil Mujumdar
Tata Institute of Fundamental Research, Mumbai

Abstract
Lasers, the sources of coherent light, are ubiquitous devices with vital technological applications. Conventional lasers are built on the platform of geometric resonators. The need for miniaturization and integration into customized applications has led to alternate proposals of laser architecture, one of such proposals being Anderson-localized random lasers, which are based on multiple scattering of light. In this talk, the speaker will discuss the basics of multiple scattering, random lasing and Anderson localization, followed by some recent researches of their own and the description of possibilities of integrating this system onto chip-based devices.
